CITY MATTERS.

mer Penny Press to be had every morning at the Counting-room door.

EXPURITION AT THE OHIO MECHANICS' INSTI-TUE. To night the exhibition at the Me-chanics' Institute will end. At ten o'clock, chanics Institute will end. At ten o'clock, that favorite place of resort—a place in which are combined the useful and the beautiful, where amusement and instruction are united—will be closed. Let all who have neglected to see the curiosities, the wonders of art, go to-day and this evening, and examine for them-selves the triumphs of mind, in converting to its own use the rough productions of nature. Four rooms are occupied with articles of manufacture, and between five and six hundred contributors are registered. The number of visitors has been nearly fourteen thousand, and the total receipts are little less than five thou-

It would be useless to attempt anything like a particular notice of everything on exhibition, and we can only say to those who feel a curiosity in the matter, to visit Pike's Opera-house immediately; for let them be assured that no opportunity will occur, for one year at least, in which so much can be seen within so small

Near the entrance is a magnificent fountain decorated with nature's own scenery—sur-rounded by statuary—the work of the best sculptors in the country. The walls are decorated with fine paintings and engravings, man-ifesting a high degree of taste in the artists, seting great credit upon their industry and skill.

In the machine room are found numerous articles of utility—printing presses, lithograph presses, beautiful specimens of hardware, turn-ing lathes, corn and cob mills, flour mills, furnaces, stoves of almost every pattern, patent water filters, carriages, planing machines, saws, and numerous other articles which we omit, not because of any lack of merit, but for want of space; and last, but not lenst, the calliope, dealing out music by steam. A steam en-gine is in active operation, upon which is used lubricating oil, a superior article, manufactured by L. W. Newman, in the Fourteenth Ward. he engine is used to run the various articles of machinery requiring rotary motion.

In the third room are many articles worthy of close attention-the coffins, in particular, are of a superior quality.

In the fourth and last room can be seen a miscellaneous collection of articles of almost every variety. There, again, the printers are well represented. Numerous elegant speci-mens of the typographic art, contributed by the various publishers of this city, are inclosed in glass cases, and among them, in bold con-trast, is found an old German Bible, printed in 1645—more than two hundred years ago. How great the contrast between the coarse but solid and substantial character of the volume of the seventeenth, and the taste and elegance displayed in those of the nineteenth century! The Bible has always been the family record, but some of our enterprising publishers have rendered it doubly so, by preparing the cover to receive the likeness of the departed.

An elegant service of plate, manufactured by Beggs & Smith, No. 5 West Fourth-street, for the purpose of presentation to Dr. Nichols, of St. John's Church, can be seen near the door, among the thousand other curiosities.

Science has its representatives; astronomical phenomena, the motion of the solar system, are not delineated on paper morely, but by means of the planetarium, are presented in a tangible shape before our eyes. There are numerous globes, optical, electrical and meteo-rological intertuments, all of first quality, the work of skillful, scientific men. Nor have the ladies forgotten us. A number of quilts, the production of their feir hands, meet the eyes of the stroller as he passes around the room.

swinging sign as a milliner is a type, but its faded yellow and discolored sky-blue bows have their moral, and that will press its full force upon you. The principal story was wall received when presented first in the Lady's Book.

BRULAH. By Augusta J. Evans. Derby & Jackson. New York; Robert Clarke & Co., Cincinnail. This is a tale of southern life, descriptive of scenes and events in one of our gulf cities. It is the history of a poor and unfortunate, but proud and remarkably gifted orphen, who struggles to support herself under circumstances of great trial, and finally triumphs by attaining the most exalted position, and winning an enviable reputation through her literary labors.

We cut from the Mansfield Herald the following notice of a case which has created considerable interest in legal and railroad circles:

A SINGULAR CASE,-A case of rather a singular character was tried at our court last week. Some time ago a lady, the wife of the postmaster at Salem, got on the cars of the Cincinnati, Columbus and Cleveland Railroad, at Crestline, intending to go to Salem. She had along with her a couple of small children. When the conductor came around for tickets she offered him a ragged and soiled one-dollar bill, which he refused to take, saying it was worthless. The lady said it was all the money she had, and that it was good. She was then told by the conductor that she must get off when she got to Shelby, which she did on the arrival of the train. At that station she was advised by some gentlemen to get on the train again, it being only five miles further to Salem. This she did, and when the conductor again came around, and found her without other money than what was before offered, he stopped the train and put the lady off. The day was cold, and a driz-zling rain had made it quite muddy, and having over half a mile to walk for shelter, the lady and the youngest child took a severe cold, which after a sickness of over two months, resulted in the death of the latter. Suit was brought for damages, and, after a protracted trial, the jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff for six hundred dollars.

A MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.-How touching the tribute of the Hon. T. H. Benton to his mother's influence: My mother asked me never to use tobacco. I have never touched it from that time to the I have never touched it from that time to the present day; she asked me not to game, and I have never gambled, and I can not tell who is winning and who is losing in games that can be played; she admonished me, too, against hard drinking, and whatever capacity for endurance I have at present and whatever usefulness I may attain in life I have attributed to having complied with her pious and correct wishes. When I was seven years of age she asked me not to drink, and then I made a resolution of total abstinence, at a time when I was sole constituent member of my own body, and that I have adhered to it through all time, I owe it to my

THE IRISH EXILES .- The Citizen, a new Irish journal published in Waterford, Ireland, demands, after the example of France, an unconditional amnesty for the Irish exiles. In a letter to the Citizen on this subject, Mr. Smith O'Brien says :

It was absolutely distressing te look upon the stricken fields, that only a few days since were rejoining in the abundance of their barvests. Many thousand bales of cot ton have been lost to Alabama planters by the dispaters of the last week.

A USE FOR THE GREAT EASTERN. -The Brit ish public have been devising uses to which the Great Eastern may be put that will be profitable to her owners. The war in Chinpresents such an opportunity, for this enormous vessel could carry out a large body of treepmore speedily than any other conveyance. We should not be surprised if the British Government should yet charter this ship for the purpose. In that event there would be considerable disappointment on this side of the Atlantic, for curiosity is very strong and widel extended to see this monster of the deep.—Phil-adelphia Ledger.
